CREATE A CAMPAIGN TO PROMOTE ANTI-LITTERING

Use your imagination and persuasive know-how to create a campaign, in teams of up to five students, that helps improve public awareness locally about the impact of littering in your local community — a clean-up campaign.

The winning team will receive €500 for the school and €500 for the team. Runners-up will receive €250 for the school and the same for the team.

We have created a suite of lessons to support you in the classroom and help your students create the best possible entries. You can access these free resources at www.bineducation.com/resources. Download them now and get started.

Teams are free to apply their marketing concepts across the communications spectrum whether through advertising, leaflets, radio, PR, video, social media or other channels. You must be clear on who is your target audience or audiences as this influences format choices, media selection, positioning, tone of voice and, importantly, the campaign theme.

The winning entry will be the one that, in the opinion of the judges, would best help raise public awareness about better littering habits to deliver a cleaner environment.

THE BRIEF

Overview

Bin It! is educational campaign being delivered across Ireland by the Gum Litter Taskforce, sponsored by The Wrigley Company, to encourage young people to litter less — all litter including chewing gum. The objectives are:

- Raise awareness about the importance of not creating litter
- Provide advice on how to reduce littering
- Generate ideas that will help people dispose of litter responsibly

Objective

You will research local activities on litter and work, as a team, to create a marketing campaign for your local community to help reduce litter.

Target audiences

Your campaign can be relevant to the whole local community or a select group within it. You need to think about the demographic your team has selected as the ways to reach them and the costs will vary according to your decision, as will the success of your campaign.

Media selection

We are interested in creative proposals for any combination of media channels to be used such as print, online, digital, TV, Radio, viral, video and so on. The channels used should be relevant to the selected target audience.

Processes

Your team will have worked on the following stages during the project: • Undertake research • Brainstorm • Decide target audiences • Create theme • Select channels for marketing reach • Complete entry form • Send entry to meet deadline.

Your entry

For your competition entry you should decide on the format whether powerpoint or written proposal, This is not an essay, it is a proposal presentation so it will be brief but creative and informative.

Entries should comprise:

- A compelling campaign slogan
- Creative executions of a visual style for the campaign
- Storyboards for any video content
- An explanation for the content choices you have made
- Explanation about selection of key message and chosen promotional methods
